THE DEVELOPMENT PROCESS

COVID-19 in the Film Industry

Over the last several months we have watched as COVID-19 has changed how we live our day to day lives. Changing our workplaces, social etiquette, and distancing us further from each other. The film industry has played a vital role in providing continuing information and source of release during these trying times. Taking a hit like all other industries, the film industry is ready to comeback stronger than ever, but the concern of safety still lingers. The same question filling the head of every person across the world “What is the new normal”.

TRAINING & PREPARATION

What We Can Do

Our top priority is to help take some stress off you. Let our team handle the constant evolving information and guidelines, so you can focus on putting out high quality productions. With our experience and medical background, we can help decipher the sometimes confusing CDC and State guidelines and promote the safety of everybody on and off the set.

Training and Education

This is one of the easiest ways we can help prevent the spread of COVID-19, with our background in training and education we can develop a program that best fits our client and their needs.

Pre-Arrival Screening

All crew will undergo a basic questionnaire to determine risk factors. This screening will be conducted between 72 and 24 hours prior to arrival on set. If person is seen as high risk Medstar staff will make efforts to complete screening at an offsite location.

IMPLEMENTATION - ON SITE

Duties of the COVID-19 Compliance Officer

Offer Guideline Reminders
With the excitement and energy of a set, some may forget the guidelines, let us act as a third party, to give friendly reminders to ensure that personnel are adhering to recommendations to the best of their ability.

Oversight of Cleaning and Disinfection
Whether it be between uses or end of day, we will oversee that proper cleaning and disinfection of all areas are taken to maximize prevention of transmission.
